

ABSTRACT

Disclosed is a semiconductor device which comprises a substrate in which surface is formed a depression having a closed figure when viewed from the substrate normal and a 5 semiconductor layer which is formed on the surface of the substrate by crystal growth from at least an inside face of the depression.

005007" 45003960